

transport

trans•port (v. trans pôrt", -pört"; n. trans"pôrt, -pört), v.t.

1. to carry, move, or convey from one place to another.
2. to carry away by strong emotion; enrapture.
3. to send into banishment, esp. to a penal colony.

n.

4. the act of transporting or conveying; conveyance.
5. a means of transporting or conveying, as a truck or bus.
6. a ship or plane for transporting soldiers, military stores, etc.
7. an airplane carrying freight or passengers as part of a transportation system.
8. a system of public travel.
9. strong emotion, esp. ecstatic joy, bliss, etc.; rapture.
10. a convict sent into banishment, esp. to a penal colony.
11. a mechanism that moves magnetic tape past the head in a tape deck or tape recorder.

1325–75; ME < L transportare to carry across. See [TRANS-, PORT⁵] trans•port"able, adj.

trans•port'a•bil"i•ty, n.

trans•port"ive, adj.

syn

See ECSTASY.